Apparently there is an Actor's Fund jobs bulletin you can sign up to get. I've been to their site - does anyone know how to actually register to get it? I don't see a link describing that anywhere (but I know it exists!) Link?

And this sucks- in order to be apart of their work program you have to have been working. Somehow that seems wrong to me. <http://www.actorsfund.org/services-and-programs/actors-fund-work-program>

Call them. I had a bad experience with them though- there idea of helping me find a job was finding a job that would be permanent outside of the industry and well I felt they were behind the times a bit. Told me how i might be able to find a job with people I would want to talk to at the water cooler when I wanted to find parallel work in the industry. I am not SAYING don't try them. YOU might have better luck.

My experience of the Actors Fund has been great. They host great workshops and panels, one at the SAG building and the other in Burbank every other month. There is a panel on jobs in healthcare this Thursday. Sarah if you want to email me, I will send you this week's job bulletin. You have to do an orientation with them before you can sign up for their programs.
