Just now 🌐

I was going To go to this but I auditioned for Cynthia Ettinger only to get some snide comments about Psychology and not only turned down but told I was not going to be allowed to try again. I had just talked to Blake Shields too. I mentioned him not to get in, because as far as I knew he wasn't with them, and Cynthia was like "oh yeah you talked to Blake Shields." I then saw one of there company was in a Scientology production up on Hollywood Blvd. I walked away from Scientology after seeing a document that said Hubbard was happy someone died who was against his religion. See the play Disconnection. I'm not a bigot. There is something wrong with the way that religion treats people. I was looking for creative's not a silly class telling me to walk around my car and feel it's energy to prevent car accidents. My getting healthy and loving myself would be more efficient. I was also not looking to be abused for leaving the church. I have the right to say no to a religion. It is not hatred to choose my own path. Amituofu.

For abused children, that trauma is just the beginning. Most will likely struggle well into adulthood. Living with an abusive parent has increased their risk for depression and other psychological problems while decreasing their chances of successfully maintaining close relationships. Even physical ailments, like type 2 diabetes and heart disease, are more likely in adults who were abused as kids. Early abusive experiences can leave a stubborn imprint on those children's brains and bodies, and Seth Pollak, a professor at the University of Wisconsin and head of the study, wanted to know how, exactly, abuse

I just copied what happened. I shouldn't be excommunicated by men who abused me. Seriously. I'm an actor. I've been set up. It isn't right. I'm not interested in Blake Shields, not if I can't be an actor. I want to act.

Look at My IMDB. I was an Aftra Union Photo Double on Modern Family and I'm getting a lawyer and suing for sexual discrimination.

And I'm going to write one nice blog about this and share it with the ladies in the industry including your response. I have the right to be single. I have the right not to be used by men who want to make it look like I'm a stalker or am after a guy for money when I wanted a career. I have the same needs you do. To be respected as a professional and not as a girl out for a man. Screw you.

I just reported your group. Who ever had me removed its guilty of discrimination and threatening my health and well being. I don't care if Blake Shields is with Ceri Betham. I'm being invited to his church and refusing. I want my rights back. I have no future back don't care about being rich. I don't care about having a man. I was happy. And I worked my butt off to get good grades and to work as a set photographer and editor. Let me back in. If Blake Shields is in the group I'm filing sexual discrimination charges. I don't want a man unless he wants me and frankly I'm

No, I didn't study to be a Teacher, didn't have to. However, you seem to have an agenda that has given me the impression that maybe you're, as they say, "a Quart low". Have you sought professional advice?

I need to get a new headshot but I'm not unacceptable and the Union needs to stop abusing me. I shouldn't have to pay more for classes and be forces to pay for workshops while other members can have access to free services in Hollywood. I graduated Phi Beta Kappa from McDaniell College. Is every member now being forced to do theater or just us women.
